Hooper Wilkinson

Principal

Area of Expertise

Hooper Wilkinson is a Co-Founder and Principal at BroadPoint Partners with extensive experience in industrial real estate, specializing in both tenant and landlord representation across the Atlanta metro and greater Southeast.

Hooper is known for his client-focused approach, combining deep market knowledge with strategic site selection and complex lease negotiation. His expertise spans a range of industrial product types, from large-scale distribution centers to niche industrial facilities, making him a trusted advisor for occupiers, investors, and developers alike. He excels at aligning real estate strategies with business objectives, ensuring long-term growth and operational efficiency for his clients.

Professional Accomplishments

Since beginning his career in 2017, Hooper has completed over $630 million in transaction volume across more than 24 million square feet of industrial space. His experience spans tenant and landlord representation, site selection, and investment sales across the Atlanta metro and broader Southeast. He is known for building long-term client relationships and helping his clients achieve success through thoughtful, data-driven real estate decisions.

Business & Educational Background

Hooper co-founded BroadPoint Partners in 2025 after nearly eight
